GLENDALE'S DELEGATES TAKE STAND

Map Severely Criticized for Unfair Division as to Size

TO CONSERVE WATER

Flood Control Board Called to Account for Neglect

The tendency of Pasadena to belittle efforts toward progress and advancement of Glendale was indicated even at the Regional Planning conference, held in that city on Saturday, when one of the first things that City Manager Reeves, Dr. Jessie A. Russell, City Engineer Hill and his assistant, V. B. Stone, Glendale's delegates to the conference, noticed was a regional map supposed to show the approximate size of the various cities represented at the meeting.

According to the map, Glendale was shown as being one-fourth the size of Pasadena, when, as a matter of fact, Glendale has practically the same area as Pasadena and considerably more than half as much population. This fact was called to the attention of George Damon, who was responsible for the map, and he admitted these facts and agreed to correct the map accordingly.

City Manager Koiner of Pasadena made a statement regarding the way the county flood control had wasted the storm water which otherwise would have been saved by the Devil's Gate dam. The charge was one of the outstanding features of the conference. He termed the waste as almost criminal, and an outrage, stating that Devil's Gate dam was erected for water conservation as much as for any other purpose. He further stated that Pasadena would object to voting any more bonds for flood control purposes until the control is vested in three engineers rather than one, as at present, and with the idea of conservation of flood waters.

It was privately stated that one of the great causes of complaint in the way Mr. Reagan, flood control engineer for the county of Los Angeles, has handled this matter was on account of the fact that he had allowed water to be wasted through the dam at a rate probably 50 per cent in excess of the maximum flow for the storm without the dam.

Some very significant figures regarding the flow of the San Gabriel river during the recent storm were given by Water Engineer Morris of Pasadena. He stated that the run-off amounted to approximately 150,000 acre feet, or a sufficient amount to supply the city of Pasadena for 19 years. After listening to the reports of Mr. Morris and the talk by Mr. Koiner, it seemed to be the sense of the conference that flood control was probably the most important problem before the body.

Annexation was dealt a blow by the statement of Dr. Powers, county health officer, who stated that contagious diseases recognize no political boundary lines and Los Angeles city can no longer afford to insist upon annexation as the only method of solving the sanitary problems of outlying communities. Interest of the county board of supervisors in this matter was expressed by Supervisor H. W. Wright, who stated it would have the board's earliest cooperation and support.

County Auditor Paine of Los Angeles made a plea for assessing and tax collection in the smaller towns. He claims that such action would save considerable money for the people of the outlying communities. This statement was

Says Bootlegger Is Far Worse Than the Old Time Bartender

The saloonkeeper once had an idea that he could run the institutions of this country, says Henry James in his comments on the news of the day on the editorial page this evening. That, he says, marked his decline, and Mr. James calls attention to his successor, the bootlegger, a far more dangerous and despicable creature. "The people who closed the saloon," asserts Mr. James, "will not tolerate the illegal dark-alley dispensary."

James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" says that people are forever asking questions and he talks about the "Why People" and what he says is interesting.

Dr. Frank Crane has a word about the Wellington Home Foundation, and in the editorial columns this evening you will find ably written editorials on subjects that are before you today. There are poetry, paragraphs, wise sayings and other features of interest.

There isn't another such editorial page published in any newspaper in the west. Get the habit and read it regularly.

TRAFFIC BUREAU MUCH NEEDED

Matter Will Be Put Before City Council Thursday

It is possible that Chief of Police Allen Martin will ask the city council to appoint a committee to investigate the needs of the traffic department. According to Chief Martin, a traffic bureau is a necessity. Patrolmen are doing traffic duty at rush hours and on Sunday and this is requiring the larger portion of the men on watch at the time.

Chief Martin gives a list of men on traffic duty Sunday afternoon. At Brand boulevard and San Fernando road, one of the worst intersections in Southern California, as seven different roads cross there, three patrolmen were required to handle traffic. At Brand boulevard and Colorado street another officer was directing traffic and another at Brand boulevard and Broadway. When the Los Feliz road is reopened it will be necessary to station another officer at Los Feliz road and San Fernando road to direct traffic.

Chief Martin will write a letter to the council in regard to the matter. He declares it would be necessary for the investigating committee to spend only a short time at these corners to become thoroughly convinced of the need of a traffic bureau.

REGISTER NOW IF YOU WOULD VOTE

L. W. Ball, deputy registration officer of Glendale, declares that people are not registering as fast as he expected and that unless more interest is shown, Glendale will have a very poor showing when election day comes around.

Mr. Ball lives at 363 West Elk, and is now touring the city, taking the names of those who desire to participate in the elections in this county. Mr. Ball can be found at his home by those who have not registered and cannot be located by him during the day.

TOWER CLOCK WILL BE GIFT TO NEW CHURCH HERE

Presbyterians Here Will Receive Gift from Unknown Woman

The Glendale Presbyterian church was crowded at the morning communion service, when a goodly company of new members was received into fellowship.

Following the communion rites, Dr. Edmonds announced that a good woman friend, who is a Presbyterian but not a member of the church, desired to provide for the new church a four-faced tower clock of Seth Thomas make, the face of which will have a diameter of nine feet. It will strike the hours and be illuminated at night. She will do this as a memorial to her mother.

Dr. Edmonds remarked in commenting on this wonderful gift that there would doubtless be others who would wish to give memorial windows or other things in remembrance of those who had been near and dear.

NATIONAL HEAD OF MOTHER CONGRESS TO COME HERE

Federation of P. T. A. to Meet Here on April Fourth

A most interesting bulletin is being circulated in Glendale concerning the first district Congress of Mothers, which will be entertained by the Glendale federation of Parent-Teacher associations April 4, at the First Methodist church, at an all-day meeting with luncheon served at noon.

The national president, Mrs. Milton P. Higgins of Massachusetts, will be in California at the time, on her way to the national convention at Tacoma, Wash., the second week in May, and she will be the guest of honor at the Glendale conference. Federation presidents and the presidents of organizations not federated will give reports for the information of this distinguished guest, who will be glad to know of progress on this coast.

WANT RECORDS TO USE IN CONTEST

Owners Are Urged to Loan Them to Schools During Test

In order to enable the music contest to be carried on at its best it has been asked that the people of Glendale look over their old phonograph records and see if they have any of those needed to carry on the contest. There are ten schools in Glendale and ten records are needed each week for each school, and it is hoped that the people of Glendale will donate or loan these records until the contest is over. The list of records desired has been published and the definite date of the contest will be announced later. Anyone having any of the records desired can leave them at the nearest school or in the Business and Professional Woman's club, 209½ South Brand.

FUNERAL OF POPE STARTED TODAY

Thousands Pass Chapel Where Body Is in State

ROME, Jan. 23.—The burial of Pope Benedict XV with solemn ceremony which will extend over a period of ten days, began this afternoon. The body of the late Pontiff, which lay in state in the sacrament chapel for a brief while today, was to be placed in the first of three coffins in which it will finally be interred and tonight will rest in the vault of St. Peter's.

Thousands had passed the grilled doors of sacrament chapel and kissed the foot of the dead pontiff since 9 o'clock. Late this afternoon the doors of St. Peter's were closed to permit the actual burial service to begin.

JURY TRIAL FOR FRANK WALKER

The demand of Frank Walker, charged with petit larceny, for a jury trial resulted in postponing the hearing from February 2 until February 23. Walker is charged with having taken gasoline and oil from a garage that he was supposed to protect as a patrolman of the Glendale Merchants' Patrol. He was arrested last week and released under $100 bail. Walker entered a plea of not guilty.

STANFORD GIRL WANTED ESCORT

Advertised for Man to Take Her to Pavilion Dance

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Jan. 23.—It will probably come as a severe shock to Stanfordites (only those with strong constitutions should read this story) that Stanford co-eds have taken to advertising for dates.

The women at this institution of higher education and tuition are outnumbered by the men four to one, and since time immemorial have been highly independent and "uppity" on the subject of dates—usually having several "bids" for each affair long in advance.

Whether it is the exception that proves the rule, or a new and better state of affairs from the male standpoint at the Cardinal institution, the following advertisement was recently submitted to the Daily Palo Alto, the student paper, for publication, by a co-ed:

"Wanted—An escort to the Pavilion dance on Friday evening. Expenses paid. Address Miss ———, campus, enclosing phone number and references."

Whether the business staff of the daily, which is composed of men, was shocked into inaction, or whether it was to maintain the dignity of the paper, or to prevent such an unheard-of event from immediately attracting the attention of newspapers throughout California, the "want ad" failed to appear.

WOMAN USED GUN ON ASSAILANT

Mrs. Ethel Reigel Shows Nerve When Man Confronts Her

When Mrs. Ethel Reigel, 318 West Elk street, stepped from her front door Saturday night an unknown man seized her by the throat. A possible attack was averted by the fact that Mrs. Reigel was carrying a small caliber revolver and was not afraid to use it.

Mrs. Reigel told the police that when the man grabbed her she opened fire with the revolver and believes she hit the man, for he cried out and fled. Officers Collins and Trautwein hunted for the man but could find no tract of him.

Mrs. Reigel said she has carried the revolver ever since a similar occurrence a few years ago. There is a small, vine-covered porch at the front of the Reigel home and several years ago, as Mrs. Reigel stepped from her door, she was seized by a strange man.

LIVE SHELLS ARE FRENCH PROBLEM

Plowmen in Marne May Strike Shell at Any Time

PARIS, Jan. 23.—An odd problem, which is being encountered all through the territory in which fighting occurred during the war, is that of guarding against the exploding of shells which buried themselves in the ground without having exploded. In the section of France along the Marne, where the fighting was particularly fierce the peasant farmers have found this danger to be very real. A plowman may at any moment strike a shell that will explode with sufficient force to kill him and his team.

Various solutions have been suggested, but the most promising is one worked out by a French scientist and considered by the Academy of Science. The plan is to go over all the farms with an electrical instrument that will give warning when a mass of metal is near. Such an instrument is an old American invention frequently used in laboratory work. Some modifications of it were adopted by the French scientist to fit it for field use, and his apparatus requires the services of two men.

In practical tests on the old battle fields it has been found possible for two men to explore an acre thoroughly in about one hour, and to locate every buried shell near enough to the surface to do any harm.

YOUNG COLGATE ON EXPEDITION

Starts Next Month to Hunt for the Missing Link

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Bayard Colgate of Orange, N. J., is giving up a life of luxury to search for the "missing link." Mr. Colgate, whose father is a millionaire, will be a member of the third Asiatic expedition which will sail in February. They will spend more than six months in the interior of Mongolia, searching for records of primitive man.

Roy Chapman Andrews of the Museum of Natural History is to head the expedition. Mr. Andrews is now in Peking making arrangements for the journey. There will be seven in the party, all of them scientists except Mr. Colgate. He later will be placed in charge of the motor transportation. To obtain a working knowledge of the trucks and automobiles which he has forwarded to Peking for the use of the party he recently spent some time working as a factory hand in one of the western automobile plants.

The party will leave modern civilization after departing from Urga, in Mongolia. It is Mr. Andrews' theory that primitive man had his being in that part of the world, working outward in quest of game. Mr. Colgate will travel in advance of the party, planning routes and arranging for the transportation of supplies.

MULHOLLAND SAYS SEWER PROBLEM BE HANDLED

Annexation Not Necessary Action for City to Join Plan

William Mulholland, father of the Los Angeles aqueduct, addressed the delegates to the Regional Planning Conference in Pasadena Saturday regarding the water and sewage situation in Glendale and Burbank in regard to its immediate effect on Los Angeles. He said in part:

"It has long since been thoroughly settled and determined by the courts that the city of Los Angeles owns all of the water in the San Fernando valley and Los Angeles river, including all of that which is at present being used by the towns of San Fernando, Van Nuys, Burbank, Glendale and others. The city of Los Angeles is not questioning, at this time, the use of this water by Burbank and Glendale, but when it comes to sewage disposal plants in these two cities, with the certainty that the effluent must drain into the Los Angeles river, it is evident that some action must be taken to prevent this. In my judgment we must have joint action of these cities for the purpose of building a trunk line sewer. The city of Los Angeles would not object in an oppressive way to the disposing of sewage by Burbank and Glendale, for we recognize the fact that this must be done. Los Angeles at one time made a tentative offer to join with these two cities in the construction of a trunk line. It is true that some of the Los Angeles councilmen objected to this unless Burbank and Glendale should first annex to Los Angeles city, but in my judgment, this should not and will not be required."

CAMPBELL SHOWS P. E. FINANCIERING

Says Public Is Asked to Secure Bonds of the P. E. Line

Kemper Campbell, one of Glendale's leading realtors has suggested another point on which City Attorney Bert Woodard might base his fight against the recent increase of fare on the Pacific Electric. When he attends a hearing before the railroad commission Tuesday.

Mr. Campbell says that while it is a well known fact that for several years the Southern Pacific railroad has been losing money on its local passenger traffic all over Southern California, it is an equally well known fact that the road is one of the few railroads in the United States that is making money on its transcontinental traffic. A plan was conceived among the directors of the Southern Pacific that by organizing another corporation to handle the local traffic along the feeder lines of the road in Southern California and also assuming the losses from that branch of the service each year that the Southern Pacific, as a corporation would be a money making proposition in all departments.

This plan was carried out and the outcome of the organization is the Pacific Electric, it was intimated. The directors of the Southern Pacific company were forced to buy the bonds of the newly organized corporation as it was recognizedly a losing proposition from the start and no financier or group of financiers would purchase the bonds. In asking that the rates of the Pacific Electric be increased, it is indicated that the directors of the Southern Pacific company are attempting to have the state railroad commission protect their bonds from funds received by the public.

Mr. Campbell also said that he believed that each line of the Pacific Electric should be self-sustaining in most cases and that lines such as Glendale, that are admittedly money making lines, should not be forced to bear the burden of other losing lines. He also stated that the fares should be placed on a volume of business basis rather than mileage. He said that in his own mind he believed this to be the only method by which the fare question could ever be settled to the satisfaction of the general public.

ARBUCKLE TRIAL SOON BE CLOSED

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—With only the testimony of a half-dozen minor witnesses remaining to be heard, the state expects to close its case against Roscoe Arbuckle late today. The case for the defense will contain no surprises. A few new witnesses will take the stand, but their testimony will deal only with three or four points. Arbuckle himself will probably testify either Wednesday or Thursday.

PRAISE SERVICE HERE LAST NIGHT

Presbyterians Hold Usual Service of Song on Sunday

The Presbyterian church last night had a praise service, as is its custom for the evening of the communion Sabbath.

The quartet choir, directed by Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts, did excellent service, as always. The perfect articulation of their words is something which deserves and receives especial appreciation. Very valuable assistance was also given by Mrs. Robert J. Baird, soprano, and Mr. J. Stiff, tenor, both of Van Nuys, and by A. M. Draper, contralto of Glendale, and Mrs. Enona Hopkins, harpist of Glendale. Miss Carolyn Bailey, organist, did her usual unexceptional service at the organ. Every portion of the program was of genuine value and beauty, and was evidently appreciated by the large congregation.

The sermon, by Rev. Louis Tinning, assitant pastor, was on the theme, "Life's Pivotal Hour" from the words, "The Master is come, and calleth for thee."

FINE CONCERT IN CHAMBER HERE

A concert and lecture will be held Thursday, January 26, at 8 o'clock in the new chamber of commerce hall, 150 South Brand boulevard. Dr. E. C. Martin, a prominent physician and surgeon, formerly of Colorado, and Capt. W. T. Helms, well-known attorney of Los Angeles, will make addresses on the subject of chiropractic.

The "4" Embers quartet will give a highly interesting musical program, and will sing several of the songs that have made them famous.

ADVENTISTS HERE SHOW GREAT GAIN

Over Two Hundred Members Added During Past Year

MUCH MISSION WORK

Pastor Neff Given Wonderful Support by People of Church

At the business meeting of the Seventh-day Adventist church, the annual reports of the church work were given, showing a remarkable growth in all lines of church endeavor. The report of the clerk, Mrs. C. B. Towler, shows that the membership of the church at the beginning of 1921 was 490, while at the beginning of this year it was 625. During the year 207 were added to the church, deducting from this number those that were transferred to other churches by letter, we have a net gain of 135. In addition to this, 40 have been added to the church thus far in the new year. The seating capacity of the church is 800, and this is taxed to its utmost at all the regular services. Steps must be taken soon to make provision for the rapidly growing congregation.

The financial report of the church as given by the treasurer, Miss Mary E. Learned, shows that there has been paid for all church purposes $64,679.20. Of this amount $44,493.63 has been paid for the local conference and local church work. The remainder, $20,285.57, was given for missions and the Near East and Russian relief, and the China famine relief funds. The report further showed that the Sabbath school had given $8,196.63 of the above amount, averaging over 32 cents for each member each week. The average for all church purposes was $132 for each member for the year.

The present pastor, E. L. Neff, came from Fresno to Glendale about one year ago, having accepted a call to the pastorate of the church here. Associated with him is the board of elders, who are, for this year, Dr. E. W. Alseberge, I. A. Ford, C. E. Kimlin and Jas. Howarth. The chairman of the board of deacons is Paul C. Mason and of the deaconesses, Mrs. G. W. Reaser. Mrs. W. F. Martin is superintendent of the Sabbath school and Miss Sadie Beaird is leader of the missionary volunteers.

FINE PROGRAM IS IN READINESS

Reservations for the dinner which the Business and Professional Women's club will have Tuesday evening in the banquet hall of the chamber of commerce assure the success of this important social affair. A fine and varied program has been provided to follow the dinner served to club members and a distinguished representative of various important organizations, civic and social, of our city.

REDUCE WAGES

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Millions of dollars had been slashed today from the pay of 300,000 railroad clerks, freight handlers and station employes by the United States railroad labor board.

The board also announced sweeping changes in war-time working agreements.

P. E. USES NEW METHOD FIGURING

In connection with the controversy over the increase in rates by the Pacific Electric company, a plain patron of their lines finds some of their arguments rather difficult to understand. For instance, in the cars is posted a placard announcing the change as being on "a strictly mileage basis," and as being "non-discriminatory" as between different communities. Their own folder gives the distance from Sixth and Main, Los Angeles as 8.15 miles, while the distance from the same point to Watts is given as 7.45, there being less than three fourths of a mile difference. But the fare to Watts has been lowered from 13 cents to 10 cents, while that to Glendale has been raised to 23 cents.

Perhaps the Pacific Electric company will rise and explain how that is a "strictly mileage basis," and how it is non-discriminatory." If it is held that the 10 cent fare to Watts is on the local car only, and if Watts people use the through trains they have to pay more, we would like to ask why the company does not put on local Glendale cars. At any rate an ordinary simpleton finds it hard to follow such deep reasoning as they use.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

MALTY PLANS TO MANAGE THINGS

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"It's free, free, free!" yapped Tommy Peele's old dog, Watch, dancing his front feet clear off the ground at every word. "Now when it comes back here for the third time there's nothing left except for it to choose. But it ought to be warned. I thought surely you'd have told it by this time."

"How could I?" demanded Dr. Muskrat. "Then it would have been here three times. You remember the question."

"That's so." Watch dropped his tail. "Then it can't be warned, can it? And things may go wrong —and——"

"Who ought to be warned? Of what?" a puzzled voice cut in. And there was Malty Kitten peering down at the two of them from Tad Coon's hickory tree. "What are you trying to say, anyway? Do you know your own selves?"

"It's about the red dog," Watch explained.

"What red dog?" asked Malty curiously, as if he didn't know down in his heart it must be the very one he'd left in his cabin.

"What's his name?"

"It's name?"

"Yes. What do folks call it?"

"Just 'red dog' or 'you.' You see, it didn't really belong to Louie Thomson, so he didn't name it. And the man who took it away from him didn't call it anything. He just caught hold of its chain."

"But it ought to be Louie's dog," Dr. Muskrat spoke up. "I've said so all along. I asked the stars—"

"And they said——?" the cat questioned eagerly.

"Twice-owned, twice, where the ownerless live have I come.
Thrice, now free, may I choose who shall give me a home?"

the doctor repeated. "You see, we know it's free because its other owner is looking for it. And we know it will come straight here to find out what the stars said about it. That will be the third time it's been at the Pond. Then something's bound to happen. But what? You see, the stars don't promise anything. If we could warn it. But how can we when nobody knows where it is?"

"Oh, doesn't anybody!" began Malty with a grin. He was just going to tell them what he knew about their missing friend, when "Tweet-tweet!" sounded a shrill whistle. From his perch he could look out over the quail's thicket. "Somebody's coming," he said. "A man with a gun!"

"It's the red dog's man,' barked Watch, running around the end of the thicket to make sure. "It said he used a whistle to call it in. Where did you see him?"

But nobody answered. Malty was gone.

NEXT STORY: THE RED DOG WON'T BE MANAGED.

WOMAN ROUTED MAN WITH SHOTGUN

Mrs. John Johnson of 540 North Louise street reported to the police Friday night that someone had attempted to enter her house and that she had frightened him away with a shortgun. Mr. Johnson does not get home from work until 9 p. m. or later and last night she heard someone trying to open the rear door of her home with a pass-key. She went to the rear of the house and saw that a stranger was attempting to open the door whereupon she secured a shotgun and started for the door. The prowler heard her and fled. Police serched the neighborhood.

INDICTMENTS OF THE GREAT MASTER

Rev. Ford's Theme Sunday Morning of Much Interest

"The Master and His Indictments," was the subject of the discourse by Rev. E. E. Ford at the First Baptist church Sunday. He said in part:

"In the courts of the world there is a deal of difference between indictment and conviction, but in the courts of Heaven the indictment and conviction mean the same. In the courts of the world it is an easy thing to bring an indictment. Very often the indictment is placed on the wrong person, for it is sometimes an easy matter to put the blame on the wrong person. Jesus Christ did not hope to escape indictment. We see this more plainly than did those in the olden times. But why did the learned scribes miss the wonderful message of Jesus Christ?

"Let us be real this morning. The heart of Jesus Christ has not changed in all these years. We are the same men and women the we were yesterday. It matters not whether we are going to church or to work—we are the same.

"Was Jesus ever discouraged? My answer is, 'Jesus was never discouraged but He was mightily disappointed.' For a long time Jesus was silent. Oh, the wonder of that man of Galilee. Then He began to upbraid them. 'It will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon in the day of judgment than for you.' And while He was saying this His heart broke. Oh, the compassion of Jesus Christ. There was a ray of sunshine in that storm. He could see everything. While men would have nothing of Him, He had everything for them from His Father.

"'Come unto me and I will give you rest,' said He. This is what He meant. 'When you are down, when everything is breaking wrong, when the Devil has you where he wants you, come to me in your own strength, you cannot do it, and I will do it for you.'

"The strange thing to me is that men in their own strength plan, and plan, and plan; and fail, and fail, and fail—when there is a wonderful partner standing close beside them. He says, 'Learn of Me, for I am meek and lowly of heart." If you want to win out in the battle of life take God into your partnership. He can make you a success.

"The verdict was, 'I can find no fault in Him.' Can that be said of anyone here? You can't sow to the whirlwind and reap a harvest of wheat. Whatsover a man soweth that shall he also reap. If I know that you are going down the wrong road and do not warn you, God will call me to account."

The evening's sermon was from the subject "How to Carry Life's Load."

JACKSON BOUGHT CLARK INTEREST

A. A. Jackson of the firm of Clark & Jackson at 120 East Broadway, established September 10, 1921, has bought out the interest of Mr. Clark and will continue the business alone. Mr. Clark will assist him occasionally, but expects to devote most of his time to his real estate interests. Mr. Jackson has had 20 years experience in the haberdashery business.

Facts are stubborn things. Even theories won't always do as they are told.

Mary Miles Minter Is Scene at Glendale Theater

It may be that the reviewer is particularly interested in Mary Miles Minter's picture, "Her Winning Way," at the Glendale Theatre, because the heroine, Ann Annington, is herself a reviewer of books.

Indeed, it is Mistress Ann's wholehearted devotion to her assigned task of getting an interview with Harold Hargrave, a successful but shy young novelist, that gets her into all the entanglements which provide the abundant humor of the picture.

Miss Minter has a role to which, by virtue of her youth and beauty, she is peculiarly suited. She has, moreover, the experience and acting ability to make it convincing. She is supported by an excellent cast including Gaston Glass, of "Humoresque" fame.

The Once Over

DUMM AND DUMMER ON BRIAND'S RESIGNATION

By H. T. PHILLIPS

"I'm thinking of a trip abroad to see the ruins of France," confessed Senator Dumm to his colleague Representative Dummer as he came across him in the corner cigar store fumbling with the automatic lighter.

"Why don't you go to see the ruins of the French premiers?" asked Dummer. "There are more of 'em."

"Your reference is, I suppose, to the resignation of Aristide Briand," returned Dumm. "Well, I hate to see Aristide go, but in France the job of a premier is about as secure as the job of a prohibition enforcement officer in America. French cabinets are run by the same set of directions you find on cod liver oil."

"What's them?" asked Dummer.

"Shake well before using," replied Dumm. "Briand was only the late fall and early winter premier, anyhow. They choose them by seasons over there, and it was about time to pick the early spring premier.

"It's too bad," muttered Dummer.

"Briand won't mind it," reasoned Dumm. "He's resigned as premier so many times it's become a habit with him. I think he has had the job seven or eight times and passed it up."

"He must be running for the International In-and-Out Championship," suggested Dummer. "From where I sit he reminds me of a man running around in a revolving storm door."

"This time I understand he is very determined to stay out; in fact he may remain out for eight or nine months."

"What did he resign for?" asked Dummer, "I thought the French chamber had given him a vote of confidence only a couple of days before."

"That's probably why he quit," informed Dumm. "There is nothing to be regarded with more suspicion than a vote of confidence by a French chamber. Look over the record and see for yourself. As soon as the .. .. .. what do you call the members of a French chamber, Dummer?"

"Chambermaids," suggested Dummer.

"Don't be such a goof!" rebuked Dumm. "I think they call 'em deputies. Well, as I was saying, as soon as the deputies have given a premier a vote of confidence they hurry into executive session and take up hammer throwing for distance and accuracy. A vote of confidence in France means about the same thing as the warm handshake which two fighters indulge in in this country just before they start fighting."

"What did they have against Briand anyway?" asked Dummer. "I've seen his pictures in the newspapers and I sort of figured that if anything cost him his job it would be the way he combed his hair."

"You mean the way he didn't comb it, but his hair had nothing to do with it," replied Dumm. "The objection of the chamber to Briand was that he was trying to be reasonable in the negotiations with Great Britain and the United States with regard to disarmament, the German debt, and so forth. The French are suffering from a severe attack of suspicionitis. Everytime an automobile backfires in the vicinity of a French government official these days he rushes into the chamber, says Germany has started a new war, and demands a larger army and navy."

"France was afraid Briand would be a party to some international plan to guarantee France security from attack," continued Dumm.

"Why should France be afraid of that?" asked Dummer.

"France is never satisfied unless she feels insecure. For centuries the French have been trained to live in fear of an invasion. If a Frenchman was put in the position where he had no reason to fear Germany it would make him very unhappy. I'm beginning to think France fears security more than she fears war."

"Did Briand have any outstanding enemies?" asked Dummer.

"His chief opponent was Millerand:"

"Miller and who else?" asked Dummer.

"Just Millerand," insisted Dumm, "it's all one word. He and Briand differ, I understand, over the next conference."

"What next conference?" asked Dummer.

"Genoa," snapped Dumm.

"Genoa what?" demanded Dummer.

"Genoa good cigar if you saw one?" replied Dumm, pushing Dummer into the circular-glassed cigar case.

BUSINESS MEN TO START GYM WORK

Two Nights a Week Set Aside for Men to Get Fit

On account of the unusually large attendance of business men at the meeting held at the high school auditorium Thursday night, it has been definitely decided to hold the business and professional men's athletic class on Tuesday and Thursday of each week. The first meeting will be held next Tuesday evening in the high school gymnasium. The men at the meeting Thursday night were very enthusiastic over the two-night-a-week athletic training, and those who are promoting this particular class are confident that the class will be put over.

A plan is on foot in connection with this class to inaugurate indoor baseball and volley ball leagues. A number of the various firms have signified their intention of organizing teams within their institutions and intering the league by their firm names. Among the firms that have signified their intention of following this plan are the Ford agency, Tropico Potteries company, and the Fox-Woodsum Lumber company. A number of the other firms of the city are falling into line and the prospects that within a few weeks these leagues will be in full operation.

Howard Butterfield, who is the popular basket ball coach at the Glendale high school, will have complete charge of these night classes.

The officials of the Glendale chamber of commerce are taking an active interest in this business men athletic work. An invitation has been extended to A. L. Ferguson, principal of the night classes at the Glendale high school, to appear before the chamber at the regular noon luncheon on January 24. At this time he will be afforded an opportunity to explain to the chamber the merits of these night business men's classes. When seen this morning Mr. Ferguson said that he will certainly accept this invitation, as he believes that these classes are the finest things that has come before the business men for a long time.

"The business men of Glendale are beginning to see the value of systematic physical training," said Mr. Ferguson. "We were more than pleased at the turnout Thursday evening and the enthusiastic spirit that was manifest. The men are taking this matter up with a will and we feel sure that the class will go over the top in great shape."

"Oh, mamma!" exclaimed four-year-old Hazel, as puss with arched spine and elevated tail strutted around the dining room table. "See, kitty's eat so much plum pudding zat she tan't pull her tail down."

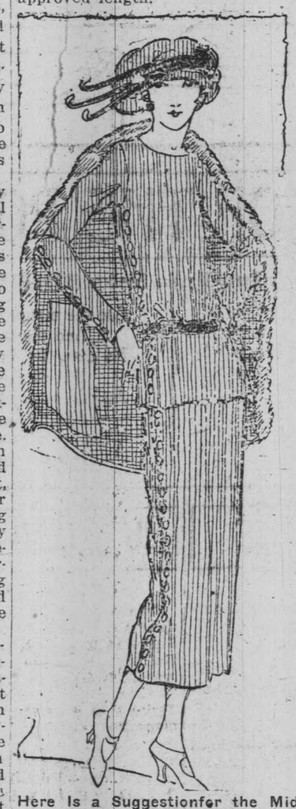
Fashions for Americans

The merest touch that is out of the ordinary mny give real distinction to the simplest of styles, as the sports suit or frock sketched above helps to prove. This outfit is a copy of a French model designed for mid-season or early spring wear. It was developed in the original in a rich tobacco brown wool jersey cloth. The cape which is detachable, was trimmed with gray fur.

This skirt and blouse or middy costume is cut on conventional lines, the new touch being the arrangement of the self color bone buttons. A row of buttons trims the skirt from hem to waist line on either side, and the blouse also has a row of buttons extending from its hem to the armhole. The sleeves are similarly trimmed. The belt is of suede in brown, the only bit of color contrast being in the fur. The cape fastens to the blouse at the neck by means of the buttons sewed on the neck of the blouse and buttonholes in the cape.

Any rather heavy wool fabric in a plain color, plaid, or stripe could be used to fashion such an outfit, or it would be very smart for southern resort or early spring wear made up in one of the heavy sports silk fabricks. These are being shown in most attractive array, the heavy crepe weaves being very popular, with silk eponge and a diagonal rough twill rather like cheviot very much featured.

Skirts are being shown in comfortable walking width, and certainly there seems to be an increasing tendency to feature skirts that are longer than American women have generally approved for several seasons. Few believe that the very long skirts are now beig worn by many French women will find favor in this country, for some time at least. However, the skirt that is seven to nine inches from the ground is short enough for comfort, and that seems to be the generally approved length.



Here Is a Suggestionfor the Mid-season Sports Outfit.

Cold and Colds

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

The hoary delusion that cold weather is in itself a cause of "catching cold" is hard to overcome. Again and again we still hear people say: "I was all right until the weather changed. As the temperature dropped I caught a cold. That is what always happens.

"I do wish I could afford to go south as soon as winter comes. Then I know that I should be free from the colds which winter brings to me."

But people of such susceptibility to colds overlook an important possibility when emphasizing the coincidence between cold weather and their catching of colds. They forget that they themselves may be the chief factor in producing this coincidence.

Certainly it is demonstrable that even through a protracted period of extreme cold there would be little catching of colds if people took pains to keep themselves physically fit. Nay, it is possible to affirm even more than this.

There is ample evidence that to the man in good physical shape, cold weather is, as Dr. Leonard Hill puts it, a "stimulating friend." It is an enemy only to those for one reason or another in a below par condition.

Make a study of acquaintances who tend to catch cold with every sharp fall in the temperature, and always you will find that they are persons in distinctly poor health or of unwise living habits.

Especially are they likely to be persons who undereat, overeat, or eat foods that do not really nourish them. Cold weather is notoriously hostile to the semi-starved. It is equally hostile to those who indulge in food in such excess that their systems are chronically congested.

So, too, cold weather is likely to have a catching of colds as its accompaniment in the case of those persons whom it finds unduly fatigued from excesses of work or play. Their already low vitality is unfavorably affected by the sudden temperature drop, and they then are ripe for invasion by the germs which alone are real cold-causing agents.

The same holds true in the case of th enumerous class of people who habitually under-exercise during the winter months. Because they under-exercise they become physically soft, and because they are physically soft they react badly to the advent of cold weather.

But it is scarcely reasonable to blame the weather for the colds they now contract. The fault rests with themselves for neglecting to conform to first principles of right living.

Had they conformed as they should they would have found the cold weather exhilarating to them. Under its stimulus they would have thought and acted more alertly than usual, instead of shiveringly complaining and gradually becoming more and more "out of sorts."

Wherefore, to all who are chronic cold-catchers in cold weather I would recommend:

"Don't blame the weather, blame yourself. And don't think it will suffice to become a weather dodger. Make an honest effort, with your doctor's aid, to learn wherein you are at fault."

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

THE VITAMINES IN MILK

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

"Why must I drink milk all the time?" wailed the little girl who had rebelled for the third time in a week at the sight of her glass of milk.

Her mother, recalling similar mutiny on her own part in her nursery days, said quietly: "Because it is good for you, dear, and it makes you strong and healthy."

"But I am strong and healthy. I can lift as much as Billy Jones."

And the mother had to smile at the sturdiness of her ten-year-old daughter, as she proudly straightened her young back.

The milk, mean time, stood untouched in a tall glass on the table. Looking at it thoughtfully, the mother said: "There is a little pink glass in the china cabinet that came from Italy, long ago, when I was a little girl. It is very precious and very frail. But if you think the milk would taste better out of the little pink glass——"

Little Daughter Is Interested

And the little girl, sensing her mother's thought, eagerly jumped up and down. "May I drink out of it, mother? May I?"

So the milk was poured onto the little pink glass and it disappeared in long, blissful sips. Such is the power of pink glass over a little girl's mind.

But that night, when her mother was tucking her into bed, Mary made a little face at the sight of the bedtime glass of milk, even though it was in the precious pink tumbler.

"Do you want to know about some of the vitamines that are in milk?" her mother asked, drawing a low chair close to the bed, with her best story-book air.

"I can't see anything in it. Do things float around in it?" said Mary, staring at the milk with a new interest. "And what are vitamines?"

"Vitamines are parts of any food that are necessary to keep the body healthy. They supply different elements to one's food.

Why Milk Is Important

"You cannot see the 'things,' dear, but there are many reasons why milk is important, most of all to growing children. When you are older you will learn wonderful facts about foods—about the tissues and the fat and the bone in your own body, and how the different parts of your body must be fed by different foods."

"I know lots now," volunteered Mary calmly. "Billy Jones' mother says he has to eat lots and lots of green leaves and vegetables—to put salt in his bones and lime in his teeth. How does she know?"

"Not leaves, but leafy vegetables," corrected Mary's mother. "All green growing things that can be eaten are important because of their mineral salts and the water they contain. And as one grows, year by year, one's body needs different kinds of food, to supply different needs. Milk gives your body lime and proteins, which form fat and sugar for the body, and the body burns it up, like wood burns in a fire."

This sounded interesting, and Mary sipped the milk thoughtfully.

"Billie doesn't have to drink milk to make a fire in his bones," she said. "I'll have to tell him."

Lime and Grown-upness

"It doesn't mean a fire in your bones, child. It simply means that milk gives the body material to repair the constant wear and tear of running and playing and being an active, growing little girl. You use up energy, which must be replaced, and then body uses the food you eat to repair and build up. A little girl should drink a quart of milk a day, if she wants to have good, strong teeth and bones—and muscle. There is six times as much lime in a glass of milk as in two potatoes, and almost twenty times as much lime in a glass of milk as in two slices of bread."

"I'm glad I can't taste the lime, but I must tell Billie's mother," murmured Mary sleepily. "It's fun drinking milk when you know there are so many vitamines in it. It sounds so important — and grown-up."

BRIDGE OVER BAY IS NOT POPULAR

Oakland and Berkeley Not in Accord With Plan

OAKLAND, Jan. 23.—San Francisco's "bridge the bay" plan has temporarily reached a stone wall through the refusal of Oakland and Berkeley to co-operate in any fashion in any bridge move which would contemplate the running of railroad lines carrying transcontinental passengers and freight directly into San Francsico, thus eliminating the terminals in Oakland and Alameda.

The joint committee from the various cities about the bay broke up suddenly when the Oakland and Alameda delegates announced their stand.

The movement to "bridge the bay" was started and fostered through the San Francisco Motor Car Dealers' association, which advertised it widely because of the congested conditions at the automobile ferries.

The bridge-and-tube plan, designed by Modjeski and Davies, noted engineers, of course contemplated railroad communications through the tunnel and over the bridge directly into San Francisco.

Oakland and Alameda decided this would injure certain business interests in the Eastbay, and hence refused to co-operate unless the bridge was merely for electric lines and vehicular traffic. San Francisco will not co-operate in any bridge plan which does not give her railroad terminal connections.

A movement is now under way to make the plan purely a San Francisco one, financed and directed by San Francisco interests. Permission to "bridge the bay" has been obtained from the war department.

An eccentric American was anxious to get married in a hurry. He arrived with his intended bride outside a clergyman's house at midnight and insisted on being married on the spot. The clergyman got out of bed very unwillingly, and having roused some of the members of his household to act as witnesses, he proceeded to tie the nuptial knot.

All went well until he asked the American: "Do you take this woman to be your lawfully wedded wife?"

The American stared at him in astonishment.

"Say, boss, he said, "what d'ye s'pose I yanked you out o' bed at this hour o' night for?"

GREAT MEN KNOW GOD IS CREATOR

Dr. Funk Points to History as Proof That Redeemer Lives

"Is Jesus Christ God?" or "A Wonderful Epiphany," was the subject of Dr. Funk at the First Lutheran church Sunday morning.

"Some people seem to think that only women and children, together with a few weak-minded men, ever go to seek after a knowledge of Jesus Christ. On the contrary, the facts go to show that the really great and wise are the ones who are striving to know Him. Indeed, history abounds in illustrations of illustrious men in ancient times who were men after God's own heart. Go to the great universities and interrogate the wise men, and you will find that the schoolmasters of the world are men who have been seeking after God.

"Every President of this great commonwealth of ours has expressed confidence in our holy religion, and all save one, have been active members of the church of Christ. No, the weak and the foolish as a rule are found on the other side. We make no claims to perfection for the followers of the Nazarene; but if you will inquire among the slums and the hovels of despair, you will discover that these are they who have not been touched with the uplifting power of the diyine Son of God.

"One of the great questions of the day, 'Is Jesus Christ God?' is being freely discussed. Ask my confirmation class, and the members will tell you that He is God. But how do you prove it? We answer, 'By His word and by His works.' John delcares: 'In the beginning was the word, the word was with God, and the WORD WAS GOD.' Moreover he continues, 'And the word was made flesh, and dwelt among us.' Certainly His word is very clear on the subject.

"Again, His divinity is shown by His works. The leper of our lesson was not permitted to come near anyone; but Jesus drew very near to him. What more? He actually touched him, and instead of becoming contaminated with this loathsome disease the leper himself became like Jesus, cleansed and made every whit whole. A wonderful epiphany, or manifestation of Jesus.

"Now, some folks say that sickness is of the devil. I think that is true; but this does not prove that every sick man has the devil in him. The fact is, a man may be very sick and yet not be a wicked man. To prove my statement, I need only refer you to the sick man brought to the Saviour on a bed. Jesus said: 'Thy sins be forgiven thee.' Now his sins were forgiven, but he was still a sick man until the Saviour said: 'Arise, take up thy bed.'

"Our lesson has another wonderful epiphany in the 11th verse. Here three men are mentioned who are well known in history. No one ever took a photograph of either of them, and yet we shall know them. What does that mean? Why, it means that if there is a widow here she is given assurance that when she enters the pearly gate she will know her husband. It means that if your babe was born to blossom into heaven, you will recognize and know your darling over on the other shore. Glorious epiphany!"

MRS. PEETE TAKES CASE HIGH COURT

Attorneys Attack Thirteenth Juror Law of State

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—Attorneys for Mrs. Louise Peete, now serving a life sentence in San Quentin for the murder of Jacob C. Denton, wealthy Los Angeles mining man, have filed a petition with the state supreme court attacking California's "thirteenth" or alternate juror law, and asking for Mrs. Peete's release on the ground that the "thirteenth juror" was called into the box and participated in rendering the verdict of "guilty" against her.

If, during the course of the trial, one of the regular jurors is taken ill, the alternate juror then goes into the jury box and takes his place. Otherwise, according to law, it would be necessary to dismiss the case and proceed to an entire new trial.

If the original dozen survive the testimony and the addresses of the attorneys—admittedly a strenuous task—the "thirteenth juror" is dismissed when the jury is locked up to commence its deliberations. In Mrs. Peete's trial one of the jurors was taken sick and the alternate juror acted.

Mrs. Peete's counsel, in their petition to the supreme court, declare that the Constitution of the United States provides for but "twelve good men and true," and that the California law permitting a baker's dozen is therefore unconstitutional and void, and that Mrs. Peete's sentence is invalid.

Should the petition be sustained, Mrs. Peete would be released and would be immune from rearrest, her life once having been in jeopardy before a court of law.

A capable housewife was trying to impress upon her maid the need of system in her work.

After carefully explaining her own methods in her work, she asked: "Now, Olga, just what do I mean by system? Do you understand what system means?"

"Ja, ja," giggled Olga, "seesteem means doin' theengs the hardest way."

Truths in Epigram

Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm. —Emerson (1803-1882).

Silence is sweeter than speech. —Craik (1826-1887).

As for future life, every man must judge for himself between conflicting vague probabilities.—Darwin (1809-1882).

GOOD FAITH AND THE BONUS

The proposition to pay the soldier's bonus out of the interest of the allied debts, doesn't promise to settle anything, or get the anxious legislator anywhere, except into hot water. To pass a bonus bill, and stipulate that money from the source mentioned was to be devoted to meeting the demands thus created, could not be regarded as an act of good faith.

There is uncertainty as to when the debtor nations will begin to meet even the interest on their war loans. That they are unable to do this now is plain. An arrangement stipulating an extended period of grace cannot well be avoided. When the men who went into the army were asked to go, there was no period of grace. They felt under obligation to their country, and they met the obligation.

Relations have been reversed. The obligation is from the country to the men. For the country to arrange a period of grace for itself, on the excuse that the war-worn nations of Europe can't meet bills, would not be a generous course. It could not well avoid leading to discontent. The pressure that would be brought to force Europe to square accounts, that it can't square now, easily might occasion friction with the former allies. The question of this payment is delicate and puzzling enough already.

An eastern paper evidently wholly opposed to the bonus, calls attention to the fact that even if European interest money could be diverted to the purpose, such diversion would prevent the lowering of taxes. This is beside the question, which is a matter of keeping the country's pledge to the ex-soldier, or not keeping it.

The richest country in the world can take care of its ex-soldiers, for countries much poorer have managed to do so for their own. It is not to be expected that the money can be provided save by methods that would be resorted to in order to raise any other needed sum. The present emergency could be met. Possibly congress lacks the courage to meet it.

One thing is sure. The responsibility cannot be shunted to Europe, and whether Europe pays soon or does not pay for many years, is not properly an element to be considered in relation to the bonus.

THE SHORT SKIRT

Rumors that the short skirt was to disappear do not seem to have disturbed the status of that garment in this region. There may be a theory unfavorable to short skirts, it is possible that Paris has issued a decree against spectacular brevity. No visible change is to be noticed. The skirt in question has been found becoming, convenient, and sanitary. It lacks the quality of modesty, but it lacks also the quality of immodesty. These traits pertain to the wearer and to the observer. Modesty, however arrayed, is modesty still. Immodesty cannot be disguised by raiment.

Recently a doctor portrayed at great length in a newspaper the evil effects of the short skirt. She said it was ruining the health of young womanhood. Somehow, from the fact that the feminine knee seemed but ill protected from the breezes, this doctor figured out that women were becoming unfit for maternal responsibilities. The next generation was to pay the penalty, provided of course another generation should be permitted to appear.

Perhaps these conclusions failed to strike the reader as wholly logical, but they were stated in language calculated to convince. A doctor admittedly knows much more than the person not a doctor. However, the reader of the particular newspaper, had but to turn a page to the utterly confounded. On the page then brought under his eye, was another preachment, from another doctor. The second one did not think that rolled-down hose and abbreviated skirts are bad for the modern girl. "Let her keep the habit if she has it," said he, "for it is fine and healthful."

Meanwhile the wearers of skirts, far from worrying, are utilizing the style that pleases them, and ever will.

ONE SAVING VIRTUE

A man confesses that he committed the crime of highway robbery. Before the act he had been a citizen of good standing. His downfall was an utter surprise to friends.

He makes full confession as to the crime. He expresses contrition. He says that he desires to pay whatever penalty is due. It is his wish to save the public the expense of a trial that could only determine facts that are known in advance.

Such an attitude cannot wipe out the memory of the offending, and yet it is in a sense admirable. It is not unnatural to assume that the court in passing sentence will take into consideration the frankness of the prisoner. Not that it would have been possible for acquittal to have followed, but that the processes of justice might have been hampered had the typical criminal lawyer been engaged.

There is no intimation that this man offers the excuse of insanity. On the face of it he would have more ground for doing so than Gardner, the mail robber, for instance, or Burch, concerning whom there has just been a disagreement of the jury. It is the fact that in his extremity he has chosen to act the part of a man, that creates for him a kinder feeling than had he remained obdurate, and sought to evade punishment.

FOLK WHO DO NOTHING

Recently a woman, whose marital barque had hit the shoals remarked: "I must have my gowns, my luxuries and my fancy footwear—cost what they may. Do you suppose I could bid high at our bridge parties garbed like a pauper?"

There is no purpose here to call attention to the individual, save in so far as she represents a type. Records of the divorce court show that there are many of the kind. They do nothing. So far as their usefulness to the world is concerned, they are nothing. They exist without purpose and without service. They expect that which they never have earned. All their waking hours are spent in idleness or in extravagancies that cater to wholly selfish desires.

Fancy a woman who says "I must have my luxuries" while other women, fulfilling some mission in the world, struggle on bravely without even the decent necessaries.

Access to money is no reason for idleness. Anne Morgan is one of the richest of American women. She has spent years in the active duty of relieving distress. She has gone to Europe and undertaken tasks of great hardship in order that she might know the truth concerning conditions there, and devise means to help the unfortunates of the world. In this country she has traveled thousands of miles to stir up interest, to quicken the spirit of charity. Out of her own means she has given abundantly.

Women who elect to be loafers have in many instances less excuse than may be pleaded by the vagrant of the highway. Their idea that the world owes them a living is on ethical parity with his. He even has an advantage morally in not setting up a spirit of discontent, for nobody envies him, or seeks to emulate him. He is the "horrible example" and no danger exists that he will be taken as a pattern.

One of the catch questions asked of candidates for admission to the bar is "Can a man marry his widow's sister?" It is said to be a puzzler to many. A negative answer would not necessarily be correct. There are different types of widows. A man may marry his grass widow's sister all right, if she'll have him.

There seems to be small occasion for predicting a big war in the Philippines to follow the withdrawal of the United States from control there. The government has no intention of withdrawing until the islanders have become too wise to fight among themselves.

Muratore, who left the Chicago Opera company because of dissatisfaction with the management, is said to have received $3000 for each appearance. He must have been quite seriously peeved.

WELLINGTON; KANSAS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

In Wellington, Kan., they have an organization known as the Wellington Home Foundation.

A number of citizens, rich and poor, have chipped in and established a fund, from which loans are made to any one desiring to buy a home.

The solidity and morality of a community is in significant proportion to the number of its people who own their own homes.

A home owner makes poor soil for the nourishment of the bacillus bolshevikus.

No means have yet been discovered more certain to make a man decent than to have a house and yard of his own, where he can be bossed by his own wife and look after his own children.

Mainly instrumental in establishing this foundation was H. L. Woods, who owns and edits the Wellington Daily News. In a recent letter to me Mr. Woods relates how it all started:

"The vision of the Foundation," he says, "grew out of my own experiences. In the first ten years of my married life I moved ten times—the last removal being because I could not pay the rent. When I was looking for a new habitation a friend came to me and suggested that I should have a home of my own; I confided that I was moving because I could not pay $10 a month and must have a cheaper house, by which he could see that owning a home was an impossibility for me.

"He said, 'I have a place you can have for $650 if you can raise $50 to pay down; it is a good deal of a shack, but it is the kind you are trying to rent.' I found the $50 and moved in. I had never had as much as $100 at one time since being married, and in the many removals I had seen Mrs. Woods trying to fit old carpets to new squares, old curtains to new windows, and so placing the pictures to cover the cracks in plastering to the best advantage that it nearly broke my heart and nowadays I never see a woman on a load of furniture moving across town that it does not cause a gulp in my throat.

"After making the first payment, we lived on almost nothing, and I astonished myself by paying out and getting a deed in one year.

"It taught me something I had not before known—How to Save. Also it convinced me that the age-old advice 'Save and get a Home' is not the best advice for most families, but should be changed to 'Get a home and save.'"

Two years ago Mr. Woods conceived the idea that others might be helped in a similar way. A number of business men started a campaign, a company was formed, and they now have a fund of over $15,000.

They lend to homeseekers. So far no borrower has been so much as one day late in making his monthly payment and there has been no loss.

Wellington is a real American town. It has the largest park acreage per capita of any city in the United States.

It has the only municipal golf links that I know of west of the Mississippi. It is used for bankers, bakers, barbers, clerks and everybody else except cripples.

It has a park house, or community house, where any woman can entertain. It is constantly in use.

It has a stadium for athletic sports, and in it all the churches combine and worship during July and August.

It is planning to take over a whole block for a civic center and has voted $140,000 to build a new auditorium.

On the whole it is the kind of town that is peculiarly American, a kind found in no other country on earth.

Out of such towns come the boys and girls that are going to be the preferred stock of the human race.

THE LISTENING POST

Somebody came in the other day and asked a question.

Somebody is always asking questions.

That is the way we learn things.

By asking questions.

We spoke here some time ago of the great virtue of the Why People.

The Why People want to know things.

And they set out to find out.

By asking questions.

They are not satisfied that the sun comes up every morning.

They want to know Why.

And that Why led to the discovery of the planetary system and the rotation of the earth and its diurnal motion and all that.

And another time it was discovered that yellow fever disappeared after frost.

And some people began asking Why.

And they learned that frost killed mosquitoes that carried infection and the carrier being dead there was nothing left to carry germs around.

The yellow fever deliveryman had gone out of business.

And so the fever disappeared because the infection was not carried about.

And the Why people discovered that the mosquito could be destroyed or screened away from sick people and he could get no yellow fever goods to deliver.

So yellow fever disappeared because of the Why people.

Of course, if people sat about and believed yellow fever was merely the visitation of an angry Providence, we would still have it.

There is no such thing as an angry Providence.

Providence is never angry.

Omnipotence knows nothing of little hatreds and feuds and bitterness.

It is too big.

So the old theory that mice and rats and fevers and pestilence and famines were visitations of angered Providence have been discarded.

The Why People have discovered many things about life.

They have learned that smut in wheat is a disease that can be prevented.

They have learned to prevent potato scab.

They have learned that blight in fruit is caused by moths and various insects and worms and things that work havoc.

* * *

So the Why People have saved millions of dollars in fruit and grain and crops.

Because they wanted to know.

And found out.

So we have the greatest regard for the Why People.

* * *

But the particular man who asked the question that we spoke about back there wanted to know how a certain thing chanced to be written that fitted his particular case.

He said it was a remarkable coincidence.

He picked up the paper and found something that seemed to have been written especially for him.

* * *

And the editor of the Listening Post asked him if he ever ate bread.

And he said he did.

But he did not see what bread had to do with a newspaper article.

And the editor asked him if the bread did not seem to satisfy his particular case of hunger.

And then he began to see the relation.

Because the farmer does not raise wheat especially for you.

But he knows somebody will need bread.

And so the newspaper writer does not aim to fit any individual case.

But he imagines that in the natural course of human events a great many people may need the stimulus of a particular article or essays or sermon or whatever it is.

So work is put out into the world.

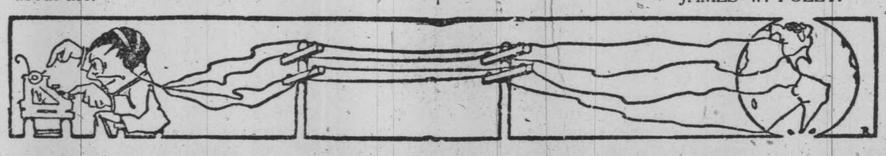
Just as grain is put into the ground.

Some of the seeds may not germinate.

But in the end there will be a crop.

And somebody will be hungry and may eat.

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

Love's Philosophy—By Percy Bysshe Shelley (1792-1882)

The fountains mingle with the river,
And the rivers with the ocean,
The winds of heaven mix forever
With a sweet emotion;
Nothing in the world is single;
All things by a law divine
In one another's being mingle—
Why not I with thine?

See the mountains kiss high heaven,
And the waves clasp one another;
No sister flower would be forgiven
If it disdained its brother;
And the sunlight clasps the earth,
And the moonbeams kiss the sea;
What are all these kissings worth,
If thou kiss not me?

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

WETTEST KANSAS!

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat]

As to what particular place is the "wettest" place in all the west, there is a chance for considerable difference of opinion. Accepting the judgment of federal enforcement officials, who probably have some competency for deciding the point, it is not where it might be suspected of being found, in those states which were unreconciled to the last to Volsteadism. It is not even in the vicinity of the west's great cities, whose cosmopolitan views led them to a total lack of sympathy with the comprehensive scope of the eighteenth amendment. It is right over Kansas, specifically in the southern mining field of that state. Things became so bad there that Washington was compelled to organize one of the most formidable movements it has yet made in any Volstead undertaking. The results of only the first few hours were the seizure of thousands of gallons of wine and whisky and mash on the road to being made into whisky, great quantities of beer not intended to be dispensed under physicians' prescriptions and the arrest of 12 bootleggers.

When a large party of Kansas young people, who had won a trip to the east in a competition some years ago stopped off in St. Louis, the local feature in which they seemed most interested was the St. Louis saloons. They had never seen one. They inspected with deep curiosity their appointments and methods of doing business, and some of their impressions, as recorded in letters to their home papers, were sent back here for our perusal. Some of them frankly confessed that they did not find the saloon to be the den they had pictured in imagination. But with Kansas so long a prohibition state that a generation has grown up there that knows not the saloon, how does it happen that it now has the superlatively wet section of a great area?

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

There are so many things we would like to see changed. There is too much noise in our factories. There is too much traffic on our narrow streets. Railway trains do not always run for our convenience. Neither do trolleys and busses. Bootleggers bootleg. Jazz jazzes. Folks we like do not like us. Those that we abhor do. Duty calls when we want pleasure. Cold days come when we want heat—and the price of a ticket to Florida is not in our purse, or bank balance.

Your special dislike is not mine—mine, not yours. But we each have them. Living has lots of drawbacks. Sometimes we wonder if dying and ending it all for once would not be better. But—would it end it? Who can tell?

We've been told that mind is greater than matter. If that's so, we must be able to conquer or minimize all these disagreeablenesses if we are wise—and try hard enough. How do we go about to accomplish such a desired end?

We might pass laws concerning the drawbacks of life. "Thus far, and no farther," we might say to them. But, would that solve our troubles? Laws have been passed until not even the lawmakers know half that are on their statue books. And the nuisances still go on. Laws do not change human nature. Sometimes they taunt and dare us—and who likes to take a dare?

No, laws will not do. We can't legislate away our little troubles and dislikes. We can rise above them. We can put them resolutely in the background of thought. We can absolutely refuse to acknowledge that they fret us.

It's hard work, but we can do it. Why not?

"WHAT IS A MERCHANTMAN?"

[Detroit Free Press]

The insistence of the French that there must be a discussion of the question, "What is a merchantman?"—a question first asked by Berlin when it was trying to find an excuse for ruthless submarine piracy—before Paris can accept the second Root proposal for the regulation of submersibles, does not tend to increase satisfaction with the general position assumed by France regarding the submarine question.

A fair answer to the question thus obtruded on the Washington conference is the remark of Mr. Root, that no definition is needed because everybody knows what a merchantman is. Merchantmen, both those armed for defense, and those that travel unarmed, have been sailing the seas for thousands of years and nobody pretended to be unable to recognize them until Berlin developed nearsightedness.

The only conclusion at which one can arrive after noting the French attitude is that Paris is trying to sidestep a square issue by clouding and befogging it with a pettifogging query.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The good people of Pasadena have been astounded by the uncovering of a bootlegging combination operating most brazenly. Many of the offenders are in jail, and there is promise of landing more.

HENRY JAMES

Such an episode emphasizes the absolute necessity of enforcing the prohibition law. This is too fine a country to be run by any band of criminals. There has been too great toleration for the lawbreakers.

Any man who says he is a good citizen, and yet is conniving in plots to defy the constitution of the land, should think it over. Fortunate for him if he still has opportunity to do his thinking outside the jail.

Purveyors of poison under bogus labels, which is what most of the bootleggers are, are public enemies. They commit crimes and instigate crimes.

That the government is not strong enough to suppress them is a mere absurdity. Their greed and their deadly methods have brought about their finish. The saloonkeeper once had an idea that he could run the institutions of the country. That marked the beginning of his decline, and the certainty of his banishment.

His successor, the bootlegger, is a far more dangerous and despicable creature. The people who closed the saloon will not tolerate the illegal dark alley dispensary.

There is a singular quality among opera singers that is loosely characterized as temperament. It is expressed in selfishness, snobbishness, greed and various other things that, possessed by any but a singer, would be considered nothing but signs of a rotten bad temper.

Too often the singers who win merited fame lack most admirable traits. A rival is an enemy. The voice of any competitor is a call to war. This absence of a single generous impulse is noted with regret but not with surprise. The public is accustomed ot the spectacle of temperament on the rampage.

A singer leaves the Chicago Opera company. Perhaps he is perfectly within his rights in doing so. The singer's wife is herself a singer, and she does not like the feminine opera star who is manager of the company. The canopy of the operatic heaven is not of amplitude to accomodate two such stars.

It isn't temperament, however. It is exactly the quality that causes a pair of washerwomen to slang each other across the fence.

Brisbane says that there are bigger fools than Trotzky in Washington. He is alluding to some of the statesmen who live in that city.

There is at least one heart in America that beats true to Trotzky and all his works.

Among conspiracies recently reported is one to keep up the price of tobacco. Such a conspiracy would hit many people in the pocketbook.

There does not seem any reason, however, why the cost of tobacco should be regarded as bearing any relation to the price of some cigars, much less to cigarettes.

An essay written by a Los Angeles high school girl advocated what its author termed a reversal of the Brigham Young system. She thinks that it would be well for every woman to have a flock of husbands.

The teacher suppressed the essay, but it was rescued from oblivion by a thoughtful journalist.

Probably this youngster is deemed precocious, but a reading of her paper indicates rather, that she is a case of arrested development.

There are many reasons for having faith in the word of another. Some people seem to take for granted that no statement is correct, and decline to be satisfied without a practical test.

A student of a medical school at Washington saw a certain drug passed among members of the class for inspection. The instructor had told the students that the drug was a deadly poison. He desired that they become familiar with its appearance.

One student seems to have been a doubting Thomas, for he took a taste of the stuff. Before he died that night, it is believed that his doubts had been cleared away.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The waiter said last night that he had just decided to give up his job. He said that he could not stand his patrons. He said his disposition is as sunny as that of a canary in a house that doesn't own a cat but that it is getting spoiled.

"Most men make fools of themselves when they sit down at the table," said he.

It seemed to him that the trouble was that the average American is subconsciously sorry for a waiter. He looks upon waiting at table as a menial job. So he tries to jolly the poor brute along and assume an air of camaraderie he doesn't feel. When he gives a tip he tells the waiter to buy him a winter overcoat, thereby making a joke out of the affair. The waiter's idea is that he earned that tip by conscientious service.

"How would you like to have your boss pull a little cheap wit every time he pays you off?" the waiter asked. "By and by it would get home to you that he did not believe you had earned the money. Then consider how I like to get that same old joke—it never varies—twenty times a day."

Some men try to show off before their guests, he said, by being upstage with the waiter. And the next one changes his mind about his order and bawls out the waiter for having forgotten. The next one overtips and is despised as a man who doesn't know how to play the game, and the one who follows undertips and is card-indexed as a cheap skate. One man wants the waiter to bang about and chat with him and the next barks if the waiter ventures a remark of common-place courtesy.

"I'm in this business," said he. "One of these days I shall have a place of my own. It would surprise you to know how many waiters look forward to ownership. It would surprise you the more to discover how many successful men of the day began with an apprenticeship as a table waiter. We do not regard serving at table as any more of a menial job than ploughing corn or first-mating on a steamer. But the average customer behaves as though we were a set of fresh-caught savages."

"A good many of you are," I said.

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

When steam replaced horses for hoisting and pumping in British mines, the need arose of stating how many horses were replaced by an engine. Experiments by Boulton and Watt showed that a powerful dray-horse could lift 330 pounds out of a mine shaft at a rate of 100 feet per minute. Hence the unit known as a "horsepower."

It takes 10 months to build a 14-inch gun, the life of which is 150 shots before relining. As each shot is executed in from one-fiftieth to one-thirtieth of a second, the actual life of the gun in use aggregates only about three seconds.

To illustrate the utility of birds in preventing the increase of injurious insects, it is stated that there are about thirteen generations of the hop aphis in a year, and if all survived the twelfth brood alone would number ten sextillion individulals. If this brood were arranged in a line, ten insects to the inch, it would extend, not merely to the sun or the nearest star, but a distance of 2500 light-years.

The terms "benzene" and "benzine," often, but not always pronounced alike, are applied to totally different substances. To add to the confusion, benzene, the foundation of the coal-tar dyes, was originally called benne, and now often called benzol.

Miss Leone Shattuck Is Bride of Emil Kiefer

A charming home wedding was the marriage of Miss Leone Shattuck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. harles D. Shattuck of 114 West Broadway, and Emil Kiefer of the firm of Pulliam & Kiefer, which was celebrated Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Though the rooms of the Shattuck apartment are not spacious, there was no lack of accommodations for the 65 guests present because all the apartments on the floor were offered for use by friendly neighbors. In one the wonderful array of bridal gifts were displayed, another was the dressing room of the bride and her attendant, still another was set apart for the bridegroom and his brother, and in another guests removed their wraps.

The Shattuck rooms were beautiful in their floral setting. Ropes of smilar were festooned from the central chandeliers to the corners of the rooms in the carrying out of a pink and green color scheme in which almond blossoms, sweet peas and pink carnations were used.

In the central living room Rev. Clyde M. Crist awaited the bridal pair, Miss Shattuck coming in on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She was gowned in a charming combination of white silk and lace and wore the wedding slippers of her mother. Her pretty baid was crowned with a wedding veil and orange blooms and she carried a shower bouquet of white rosebuds, lilies of the valley and maiden-hair fern.

She was attended by Miss Laura Roberts dressed in old blue crepe de chine who carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds.

Supporting the bridegroom was his brother, Frank Kiefer.

The double ring ceremony was used and the marriage certificate was an elaborate one which had been bought for Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck by Mrs. Shattuck's mother to replace one less ornate and never used until now.

Before the bridal party appears, Mrs. Enona Hopkins, harpist, played selected numbers and then the Lohengrin wedding march when the bride entered the apartment, after wards playing composition by Mendelssohn.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Kiefer received the congratulations of friends who came from Hollywood, Venice, Ocean Park, Pasadena and Los Angeles, as well as Glendale. After refreshments of cake, punch, pink and white ice cream in fancy mould had been served, the young people departed by automobile in a shower of rice for a brief honeymoon in some place unknown to all except themselves.

On their return they will be at home to their friends in a pretty bungalow at 511 East Wilson which has been completely furnished by the bridegroom and which will be further embellished by a wealth of beautiful gifts of every description, linen, cut glass, silver, china, pictures, trays, candlesticks, fancy work, kitchen conveniences, and numerous other articles.

Mrs. Kiefer has been a resident of Glendale for about eight years, was graduated from Glendale nign, and has been for some time an assistant in the city library. Ever since the juvenile department was opened, she has been in charge.

Mr. Kiefer has lived in Glendale about the same length of time, coming here from St. Paul, Minn. He is a veteran of the world war, having served on the U. S. S. Kentucky. On his return he entered into partnership with C. O. Puuiam, recently deceased, and is still connected with the firm.

Both young people have a host of friends and will be welcomed in the colony of young married folk.

Twenty-two is a lucky day or tailsman in the Shattuck family and January 22 was the anniversary of the betrothal of Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck. The bride is 22 years old, and because of this pleasant superstition the observance of which has always been attended with good luck, she chose January 22 for her wedding day.

Intermediate Variety Show Was Real Treat

The few parents at the Intermediate school Friday afternoon had a real treat in seeing an audience of 500 children thoroughly enjoy an entertainment that appealed to them from almost every viewpoint, a variety show for children by children.

It was all simple and very obvious comedy as entertaining to the players as to the spectators.

Wallace Trau and Homer Searles played mandolin and guitar and Charles Buss sang in solo "Everybody Calls Me Honey," Louis Doty singing "The Year of Jubilee." Others in the cast were Milo Sherrick, Homer Searles, Dewey McCourt, Leighton Taylor, Wallace Trau, Frank Goto, Lyle Wheeler, Frederick Scherholz, Charles Flynn and Charles Beamon.

Another number of which the boys approved was the pantomime illustrating the poem by Eugene Field, read by Miss Clara Midcalf, about little Sissy Knott of Buenna Park, Chicago, being abducted by a band of Indians from Ravenswood and an attempted rescue by cowboys from Buenna who were suffering defeat until the yellow pup, played by a boy whose name we did not learn, appeared on the scene and put the Indians to rout. The yellow pup enjoyed his part immensely and so did the cowboys who patted his cotton flannel headgear. In this little silent drama, William Phillips was the Indian chief, other Indians being Charles Fisher, Bill Pigg, Fred McCormick, while the cowboys were Glen Baugh, Robert Harness, John Daugherty and Ross Russell, the picturesque Indian maidens being Mary McCoy, Ruby Messman, Rebecca Kline, Marie Johnson and Elizabeth Knox. Dorothy Buss took the part of "Sissie Knott."

Another big number with which the performance opened was the "Sumfuny Orchestra," also a hobo organization in which the players were equipped with tin funnels terminating in jazz horns, likewise with dover egg beaters which they twirled with abandon, a metal washboard furnishing a jazz element in combination with a washtub drum. The surprising part was the tune they produced. The long-haired leader (Owen Miles) very languid and temperamental, using a wooden spoon for a baton, helped the comedy immensely. In response to applause one of the orchestra came forward and gravely announced that yielding to a special request they would repeat the last number and in order that the audience might be thoroughly recompensed would play it backward. The leader then came in and directed the audience, the players turning their backs upon it.

But when a pianologue was announced boys who had been most vociferous in applause groaned and asked themselves in a very audible whisper, "Why didn't we go before?" It proved, however, a very good number by Leona Hunt, and her critics were reconciled.

Mildred Tubbs had a very good reading and was encored as was also little Helen White, the whistler, who always delights her audiences.

Mr. Springer, the school janitor, in a minstrel makeup, was approved as a harmonica artist and was recalled.

An extravaganza was given by boys and girls of the glee clubs, the six girls looking very sweet in summer gowns and big hats, the boys appearing hidden under huge black silk heads on which moon faces had been painted, a clever and unusual skit.

The girls from the glee club who took part in this musical number and who sang an old French song were: Ruth Cox, Guilia Smith, Marie Warren, Dorothy Steiner, Ruth Vogel and Bernice Collins.

The boy who served as director of the sextette was Nathan Finch. The minstrels with the big heads were: Russell Lavelle, Len Leech, Graham Young, Harlan Haskell, Hewlitt Wilson, Dorsey Mottern, and these sang negro melodies, followed by a descriptive song which was illustrated by two boys in colonial costume, one in blue satin breeches, fancy waistcoat and wig, the other as a colonial maid. The tempo of the song varied with the ballad. Starting happily as a waltz, it became a march when the hero colonial was called to war. It became a dirge when he was supposed to have been killed, but ended happily as a wedding march. The two colonials were Melville Walker and Tom Muff, the latter removing his wig at the last to show that he was a boy, the finale of the clever act which was created by Misses Gladys and Margaret Sharpe, being a responsive chorus.

The Sniggles Family was another big number which the children enjoyed, Barbara Kranz, captain of the girls' athletic team, taking the part of Mrs. Sniggles. Others in the cast were Bernice May, Thelma Turner, Eleanor Kopp, Lavinia Thede, Margery Snow, Micki Hiroshima, Marcella Cole and Viola Hale.

The grand finale was a well staged salute to the flag in which Donna Wilson sang the Star Spangled Banner and the flag was brought in by a boy scout.

The house was also sold out in the evening, an audience of not less than 400, mostly adults, coming out to witness the show. The returns should be in the neighborhood of $175, money that is badly needed. At the present time Intermediate has not enough balls for all the children to play. The budget allowed for athletics provides some equipment but not enough to last the year through, hence the need of raising a fund to buy more.

Teachers of the school who worked hard with the children and worked intelligently with a knowledge of what appeals to them, cannot be too highly commended for what they accomplished with simple materials and without the expenditure of money for costumes and properties. The show was worth considerably more than the price charged.

SOPHOMORES ON SWIMMING PARTY

A jolly party of 20 members of the Sophomore class of the local high school motored to Bimini Saturday night for a swimming party. There were three machine loads and each machine was chaperoned by Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Wood and Mrs. C. B. Guthrie. After the party had returned to Glendale they went to the home of Miss Katherine Guthrie, 214 Patterson avenue where hot refreshments were sreved. It was a very impromptu affair, but everyone had a fine time.

COMMENCEMENT ON FEBRUARY 4

Superintendent Richardson D. White states that the commencement exercises of grammar school graduates will be held in the high school auditorium Saturday evening, February 4 instead of Friday the 3rd, because that date has been pre-empted by the Glendale Music club. The program has not yet been arranged.

FUR EXCHANGE BE REORGANIZED

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 23.—Proposal for reorganization of the International Fur Exchange, drawn up recently, will be presented to stockholders of the concern within the next few weeks. Through the issuance of $410,000 preferred stock and $410,000 common stock, the company will be capitalized.

By absorbing the common stock, stockholders of the old company will have the opportunity to purchase a half interest in the new firm. The creditor banks, which have been liquidating the assets of the company since June 16 last, have decided to purchase for cash the preferred stock. The unliquidated assets of the old company will be turned over to the new company by the banks.

Negotiations are under way to amalgamate the New York and Montreal Fur Exchanges with the International. Recent conferences of bankers in New York resulted in the re-establishing of the Exchange.

RESOLUTION NO. 1341

A RESOLUTION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE ORDERING CERTAIN IMPROVEMENTS TO BE MADE ON A PORTION OF BRAND BOULEVARD IN SAID CITY.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF

GILHULY IS NOW CONVINCED MAN

Finds Chunk of Ice at Office Door When He Arrived

Nothing is impossible in Glendale. That has been known to Glendalians for years but the most improbable thing that even the wildest imaginings of even Jules Verne could not conceive occurred this morning. S. S. Gilhuly, Glendale realtor with offices at 1257 South Central avenue had a real honest cold proposition facing him when he opened his office. He found one and three-ighths inches of ice on the sidewalk in front of his office.

Some one with a keen sense of humor placed the ice in front of his door. The chunk was round as though it had been dumped from a bucket. Mr. Gilhuly measured the ice and says that he would like to keep it as a reminder that nothing is impossible in Glendale and that anything can be made to grow here. Even ice will grow if given enough time and the proper environment.

STURDY CHASSIS IS WINNING OUT

"The sturdy chassis of the Buick car is gradually but surely winning out," said Mr. Tanner of the firm of Tanner & Hall this morning. "There is no car on the market today that has a stronger chassis than the Buick. It is not at all unusual for a chassis to wear out one or two automobile bodies and then be used for truck purposes. It is this long-wear quality of the Buick that is being recognized and appreciated by the motorists of Glendale."

Mr. Tanner, when seen this morning, said that business is picking up. The lull that occurred during the holidays had a somewhat slow-up effect on the business of Glendale, but this lull has practically all disappeared and business in Glendale is now practically normal.

TWO SHORT HAULS BEAT A LONG HAUL

City Attorney Points to Inconsistent Arrangement of Fares

According to City Attorney Bert Woodward, the new list of rates over the Pacific Electric railroad is evidence that the state law governing rates for public passenger carriers has been violated and with the consent of the railroad commission. According to the list, the fare for two short hauls along the same general right-of-way is less than a continued haul over the same route. An example of this is Glendale. By taking an Edendale car and riding to the end of that line and then taking a Glendale car, the fare for the entire trip to Glendale from Los Angeles is only 16 cents while the one-way fare on a direct Glendale car is 23 cents. The division of fare is made in this manner: From Los Angeles to the end of the Edendale carline the fare is 5 cents; from the end of the Edendale carline to Glendale over the Glendale line it is 11 cents, making the total of 16 cents. This same condition is met by coming to Glendale through Eagle Rock.

Coming over that route the fare to Eagle Rock on the Los Angeles city carline is 5 cents, from Eagle Rock to Glendale over the Montrose line the fare is 10 cents, making a total of 15 cents, and cheaper than to come to Glendale over the direct line.

The state law governing fares for public conveyances is plain in that the fare for a long haul shall be less than for two short hauls over the same right-of-way. The railroad commission, in granting the rates requested by the Pacific Electric, has sanctioned a direct violation of this act. In their statement regarding the increase, the commission stated that they had given the Pacific Electric line permission to violate section 21 of the state constitution and section 24 of the public vehicle act. This permission was granted to the Pacific Electric after that body had stated in the same report that they found that the Pacific Electric has been mismanaged and handled incompetently and inefficiently. They gave as the reason for the increased rate that the Pacific Electric had been depending on its parent company, the Southern Pacific railroad to keep it out of the hands of a receiver. In plain English, according to City Manager Reeves, it is giving the Pacific Electric permission to rehabilitate itself from the public funds.

"Well, they both happened to take out their pipes together. They filled them, and then each calmly waited for the other to strike a match."

"Well, what happened?"

"Oh, I brought out my pipe, so both of them waited for my match."

BURBANK NEWS

P.T.A. MEETING IS INTERESTING ONE

Organization Will Work Out Fine Program This Year

The first meeting this season of the Parent Teacher Association was held recently in the auditorium of the grammar school. Owing to the illness of Mrs. Paul Bley who is president, the association has not been active this year, but upon the resignation of Mrs. Bley, the board of directors held a meeting and Mrs. E. H. Harding who was vice-president, was elevated to the first position, and now the association will move forward and take up the obligations which naturally fall upon such an organization.

The program included addresses by Principals Moore of the high school and Collins of the grammar school, besides a round table discussion of the subject: "What can the Parent-Teacher Association do for the schools and community?" "Mother Goose" songs by the kindergarten and singing by Mrs. Graham's pupils were entertaining features of the afternoon.

The officers of the association are: President, Mrs. E. H. Harding; secretary, Mrs. C. M. Knox; treasurer, Mrs. W. S. Walker; auditor, Mrs. Stevens; parliamentarian, Mrs. Pendall; historian, Miss Farrar. The chairmen of the committees are: Philanthropy, Mrs. Chas. Pomeroy; hospitality, Mrs. Shrinner; juvenile, Mrs. Rouscup; reception, Mrs. Walker; legislative, Professor Moore; patriotism, Professor Collins; publicity, Mrs. Nicholson; membership, Mrs. Sproul; program, Mrs. Gratrix; decoration, Mrs. Streuber.

The association will meet the third Thursday in each month.

COLLINS HOME IS SCENE OF PARTY

Fifteen boys, pupils of Mrs. L. F. Collins, who teaches in Eagle Rock had a fine time in Burbank Tuesday in spite of the fact that they lost the ball game which they played with the boys of Mr. Thomas' room and lost by the serious score of 34-9. Following the game they had supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Collins on Verdugo avenue and this was followed by stories around the fireplace. Mr. Collins told some stories and the boys told some, all of them helpful. This in turn was followed by attendance at the boy scout meeting.

BURBANK PERSONALS

Mrs. J. H. Barnum has gone to Palmer, Kansas, where she was called by the illness of her father

Claude G. Brown of this city and Miss Roberta Harbour of Palms were married in Los Angeles Wednesday. They were accompanied by the bride's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fleming of San Gabriel. They will reside at 389 W. Alameda avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Pickering of Minnesota are the guests of Mrs. Pickering's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morse of Olive avenue.

Mrs. Charles Ostrom has been entertaining friends from Pasadena and Riverside.

Mrs. E. H. Harding left Friday for a two weeks' visit with Mr. Harding's mother at San Bernardino, and old friends at Rialto.

A. F. Minor is recovering from the injury of three broken fingers which he received while on duty as conductor on the Glendale Pacific Electric line. He has recently sold his home at 437 Tujunga avenue to Charles E. Hams, but he is building a duplex dwelling at the corner of Fifth street and Tujunga avenue.

FITCH HURT

Harry Fitch, meat cutter, was badly injured in Los Angeles when he started to take his car out of an auto park on South Hill street. He forgot to place it out of gear before starting it, and when the engine started, the car lunged forward, knocking Fitch to the ground. He suffered concussion of the brain and other injuries. He was given treatment at the Receiving hospital.

CHORAL CLUB TO GET NEW MEMBERS

Splendid Organization Will Make Drive at Once

The Burbank Choral club has a splendid organization of 60 members but is starting a drive for more and is succeeding well in its undertaking. It desires to get life members; associate and active members. A life membership is $50. Associate and active memberships are each $5, payable in advance or $1.50 each quarter. The associate membership entitles two persons to attend all Choral club concerts during the year. The year has been divided into quarters, the four composing 42 weeks. This leaves ten weeks out, eight of which will be for a summer vacation and two for Christmas vacation.

The club has decided upon giving four concerts but the exact dates and details have not been decided, but it is expected, however, that the first one will be soon, perhaps in March; others probably in June and October and the last one, in December will be the "Messiah."

The Hallelujah chorus from the Messiah will be rendered by the Choral club at special sunrise services on Easter morning. Plans are under way by the Choral and Woman's clubs and the chamber of commerce to inaugurate a custom of elaborate and beautiful sunrise open air services to be held each year on Easter morning. Many are approving of this plan and it will doubtless be carried out to a successful climax.

M'CLINTOCK IS ON SCHOOL BOARD

T. B. McClintock, a well-known resident of this city for a number of years, has been appointed on the school board to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of Mr. Church to a residence in Los Angeles. On March 31 the annual school election will be held. It is customary to elect one member a year, each one serving a term of three years, but this time there will be two vacancies to fill, the one naturally made vacant by J. D. Radcliff, the president, and that of the appointee, Mr. McClintock. The election will be held in the grammar school. Mr. Duncan Forsyth is the third member of the board and retains his place through another year.

SEWER SYSTEM IS NOW ASSURED

Burbank Trustees Pass Resolution at Their Last Meeting

Prospects are bright for the city to have a sewer system unless the matter is held up a second time through a technicality. At the regular session of the board of trustees Tuesday night, a resolution for a sewer was passed and this will be followed by the further necessary actions looking to the consummation of the project.

Trustee C. W. Anderson tendered his resignation as a member of the board and in his place James C. Crawford was appointed.

A petition signed by B. F. Hastings and eleven others was read to the board, requesting that the name of Roycourt avenue be changed to Grinnell drive. The petition was filed with a view to taking action on it later.

Ralph A. Mumford applied for a license to operate a pool hall on San Fernando boulevard west of Olive avenue, but as no exact location was given, the board did not act on the matter.

Resolutions were passed for the improvement of portions of San Fernando boulevard, Elmwood avenue and Tenth street.

A map was presented by Edwards & Wildey for the approval of the city. It has to do with a strip of land connected with their property near the China factory. The map was approved.

BURBANK MASONS ARE INSTALLED

The Masons of Burbank held public installation of their new officers. A large number was present to witness the work which was carried through in a very impressive manner. R. E. Dill was the installing officer:

HOLD VAUGHT

Hollis Vaught of Whittier landed in the clutches of Marshal Cole's police force Thursday and he was placed in jail until such time as disposition of his case could be made. His offense was passing checks on business men of this city. He worked five checks off here, it is said, but all were for small amounts, five and ten dollars. His father is C. H. Vaught.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Rivers of Vallejo who have been the guests for three weeks of Mrs. Rivers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Harding of 144 Providencia avenue, have returned to their home.

GLENDALE CALLS MAP UNFAIR

challenged by City Manager Koiner of Pasadena, who stated that after having conducted an extensive investigation of the matter he believed it would not be advantageous and that the advantage of a city in having the records available in the city rather than in Los Angeles would far outweigh any theoretical monetary saving. Mr. Koiner said he felt sure the people of Pasadena preferred to have their records at home and were willing to pay a slight premium, if necessary, for this service.

Along the lines of water conservation, it was pointed out that there are several other counties in Southern California that are ready to take all of the purified sewage effluent that they can obtain, and in some cases are willing to build a trunk line sewer if necessary. The available amount of water per capita in Los Angeles county in 1916 was said to be 1.43 acre feet, which has decreased to .314 acre feet in 1922. These figures clearly indicate that there is an imperative necessity for water conservation and, as one of the speakers clearly stated in planning the solution of these problems: "If you don't think big, you won't reach little," or, as was quoted from a great engineer: "Make no little plans; they have no power to stir man's blood."

The big element of the conference and the most interesting to the delegates from Glendale, was the matter of transportation and the recently increased rates over the Pacific Electric. Mr. Damon of Pasadena outlined the various cross-town and belt lines that were needed to handle the traffic situation, both in the cities and in the interurban districts. Glendale' delegates were astonished to find that in the report Mr. Damon had made no reference to auto bus transportation.

City Manager Reeves of Glendale asked Mr. Damon why he had avoided all reference to this subject, whereupon Damon answered that he did not deem this worthy of investigation because of the fact that he figured it costs him a dollar every time he goes to Los Angeles in his own automobile, whereas he could ride the street cars for 50 cents.

Mr. Reeves called his attention to the fact that this did not answer the question regarding motor bus transportation, and Secretary G. Gordon Whitnall very strongly backed up Mr. Reeves' statement by quoting specific figures showing in a definite case that an auto bus could carry passengers for one-fourth of the money being charged by the Pacific Electric.

Dr. Jessie A. Russell defeated a move to put the delegates on record as approving and endorsing all reports of the committees. Dr. Russell objected on the grounds that such a blanket endorsement would put the conference on record as favoring the present methods of electric street railway transportation. It was decided that that next meeting of the planning conference be held in Long Beach April 1.

It was suggested by the committee from Glendale that Cecil Wilcox, of Lankershim, regional vice-chairman for the northwest district, be invited to come to this city at an early date for a consultation with city officials and others regarding transportation, water conservation and other things, and to ascertain the needs of this city in these matters.

Social Morality Subject at W. C. T. U. Meeting

An interesting meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. D. Potter on Verdugo road. Owing to the continued illness of the president, Mrs. Ruby J. Smart, the vice-president, Mrs. Edith Dockeray, presided. The meeting opened in the usual manner with singing. Mrs. L. E. Richardson presided at the piano. Devotions were read by Mrs. Richardson, who selected the fourth chapter of Ephesians for her scripture lesson.

A number of fervent prayers were offered. Mrs. A. M. Draper sang a very beautiful and sacred song "I Come to Thee." Mrs. Richardson accompanied her at the piano. The minutes of the previous meeting were then read by the secretary, and the usual business was discussed. The speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Minnie Barton, a policewoman of Los Angeles. The secretary made an announcement in the form of a request coming from the state president, Mrs. Eva C. Wheeler, asking that Glendale entertain the state convention of the organization this year at the usual time. Just before the program, Mrs. A. M. Draper sang "Rock of Ages." The program was in charge of Mrs. L. E. Richardson, who introdueed the speaker, Mrs. Barton, who is a forceful speaker with a large vision, and she handled her vital subject, "Social Morality," as one who has had much experience with the problems and trials of this big question. Mrs. Barton said that for the past 16 years she has been working in the police courts and jails, and quoted Frances Willard as saying: "The reason for her success in reaching the hearts of wayward girls was in the personal touch she gave them, which was the main thing they desired." In her work she has tried to do the same. Very few people were interested in this work 16 years ago. Mrs. Barton related a personal incident of how she became interested in this seemingly obnoxious problem, and it was because she was so wonderfully healed in body and she desired to show her gratitude to God, so she chose that way of showing it. In trying to help fallen women, you have to get their point of view, and not yours. They are so weak unless you can get them to look to God chances to reform them are quite impossible, as they cannot do it with their own strength.

The drug addicts are a very big problem today. Her work with the women drug users has been in the jails, which are fully equipped to handle the cases of these unfortunates. They suffer terrible tortures and untold agony when the drug is taken from them and they are given nothing to relieve them. There is a wonderful home in Los Angeles called "Bide-a-Wee," which is doing a great work in caring for mothers and their babes, making it possible for the mother to work during the day while her baby is cared for in the home. It is the only home of its kind in the city. Mrs. Barton said the real cause of juvenile delinquency, which is increasing so rapidly, is because of the broken homes, environment and lack of opportunity. Out of 350 girls who have gone astray, only three were high school graduates and one a college graduate. The rest left school in the fifth or sixth grade. It is believed that the mothers are a great deal to blame, as they trust their daughters too much. In closing, Mrs. Barton made a plea for clothing and bedding for the home, or two lots upon which to build another home.

Mrs. Dockeray spoke of the cigarette question, which is a great problem among young people today. She remarked about what a fine chief of police we have in Glendale and said we know he is much interested in children and young people and is willing to do anything to help out with their work.

A campaign is on for a million members. A number were received upon the call for new members. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John Robert White on North Orange street.

LAW FULFILLED SUBJECT ADDRESS

Dr. Frank Riley Delivers Interesting Address Here

The lecture, "Love, the Fulfillment of the Law," by Dr. Frank Riley, before the New Thought congregation, was prefaced by a brief address on the first clause of the Lord's prayer, which is known as the universal prayer. This prayer has a fundamental principle in it. When Jesus taught the people to pray, he said, "When thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly."

Paul said, "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you?" The closet, or silence, as we term it, is the temple of the Most High wherein we find God. When the door of the mind is closed to all material desires and you feel calm, harmony, peace, love and joy within—you will be in the realm of truth, and sickness, depression, sorrow and lack will vanish; then will you be free from bondage, for "when you know the truth, the truth shall make you free." Then will you be receptive to all spiritual gifts that are "within," and negative to all things "without," for you must go to the within to find God, but to realize and to know the Divine Power in manifestation which is in all earth life.

The speaker followed along the line of Divine Law of Love, enlarging upon the story of the alabaster box of ointment, blessing the woman for her divine unselfish love, who, perhaps, sacrificed all her possessions to purchase the precious article, while he rebuked the wealthy, selfish Pharisee who complained of the expense.

Much time was devoted to explanations of both divine love and attraction or moral love to inspirational, heartfelt love and to intellectual or cold love.

Divine, unselfish, impersonal love is of God, it is divine law—it creates, it uplifts, guides, comforts, heals, brings joy in every walk in life. Love is a mighty force, it can destroy as well as create. Electricity when properly understood is a mighty, creative power, but in the hands of one who is ignorant of its power great destruction results.

By developing the unselfish love we shall see the divine light in all human beings, the animals and flowers as well. Yes, all nature is an expression of divine love. Love never loses sight of harmony and beauty everywhere.

When we realize the statements of Paul given in first Corinthians, thirteenth chapter, then shall we have a better understanding of divine love.

ILLITERACY WILL BE INVESTIGATED

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—To discuss the most beneficial steps to be taken to eradicate the stigma which the presence of 95,592 illiterate persons, according to the census figures, in the state of California give to the various communities in which they reside, the sectional illiteracy conference will meet at the St. Francis hotel here February 3 and 4.

Illiteracy in other western states will also be discussed, and concerted action throughout the west will probably be planned. The movement is fostered by the Naturalization service.

Representatives will attend the conference from Montana, Idaho, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, Wyoming, Nevada and Washington and Oregon.

Anyway, the bald-headed man does not have to squander his money for hair dye.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE COBWEBS AND THE WEEDS.

There was a man who said: "I'll do a quite tremendous thing,
So vast and big that it will set the whole world wondering.
My dreams are all so great no little deed will satisfy,
I'll get a comet's tail and sweep the cobwebs from the sky.
And when the sky is bright and clean as a new kettle lid,
And people ask who swept the sky, I'll come and say: 'I did!'
I'll sweep the cobwebs from the sky, I will, and I'll not fail
If you can tell me where to find an idle comet's tail."

So he set out to find a comet with a tail to spare,
But found that comet's tails were things, Oh, most exceeding rare,
And every night he searched the sky with a big telescope,
For year and years and years until at last he gave up hope.
And when one day he yielded up his restless ghost and slept,
He left the cobwebs in the sky just as before, unswept.
And nobody remembered him, he was unknown to fame,
Indeed the folks about the place forgot his very name.

And then there was another man who said: "This vacant lot s full of weeds and rubbish and a most unsightly spot!"
And so he got a rake and hoe and spade and did not wail
Because he did not chance to find an idle comet's tail.
And when he got the lot cleaned up he planted flowers there
Until the once unsightly spot was filled with blossoms rare,
And people got a lot of joy who looked as they passed by,
And did not ever dream of things like cobwebs in the sky.

WINDOW DISPLAY IS NEW THOUGHT

A window display out of the ordinary and one that is drawing considerable attention is that of the Glendale Brunswick Shop, at 126 South Brand boulevard. The window represents a small forest, with trees, running brook, mossy stones and song birds. There are ten canaries in the window. The stream permits them a bath and the trees make them feel at home. The canaries are not the only songbirds in the window, for there are several beatiful photographs of Miss Margaret McKee, the human song-bird, who is now whistling for Brunswick records. Miss McKee at one time lived in Glendale, later moving to Hollywood. She has won the hearts of bird-lovers with her wonderful imitations of song birds.

CIGARETTES TO STAY UP HIGH

Manufacturers Claiming Leaf Tobacco Price Is Cause

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—In spite of the fact that chain stores in the larger cities are engaged in a ruthless price-cutting war in the retailing of popular-priced cigarettes, leading manufacturers are not yet ready to predict a permanent revision of prices.

As long as the leaf tobacco market continues to hold to the present top figures and revenue taxes continue at the present schedule, it is declared, it will be impossible to reduce manufacturing costs to a point where lower prices can be announced.

The opinion is based on the prevailing prices for leaf tobacco traded in since August, when the local warehouses of the famous Southern tobacco districts opened their doors for the 1921-1922 season. Curtailed tobacco acreage and an unfavorable season are said to be responsible for the present high market.

As is well-known, the process of cigarette manufacture involve from two to three years of aging or seasoning, so that prevailing factory costs must be based on the purchase price of tobaccos bought in the high markets of 1918-19-20. Latest quotations, moreover, indicate a rising tendency in the 1921 market with averages that will come close to equalling the best prices of the preceding three years.

For example, in the leading markets of Virginia and North Carolina, which include Danville, Wilson, Winston-Salem, Durham and other prominent trading centers, the average opening price on September 20 for leaf tobacco was close to $25 per hundred pounds. With the exception of a slight slump during the first week, average prices have steadily climbed to levels ranging between $35 and $50. Many "piles" of fine grade tobacco have been sold for 80 and 90 cents a pound, while a number of farmers have averaged 70 cents for their entire crop of tobacco. Keen competition is reported in the bidding for the better grades.

Prevailing averages for 1921 bid fair to equal those for September of 1919, when prices were thought to be unusually high notwithstanding the better quality of the 1919 crop. Some idea of the trend can be gained by the fact that in December of that year, a top average figure of 53 cents per pound was reached in North Carolina. This compares with a low average of 10.6 cents in 1910, according to crop reports of the U. S. department of agriculture.

Present price cuts in retail stores are thought to be the result of keen competition among chain stores and independent retailers in a merry scramble for increased volume and quick turnover with little or no profit.

TIERNEY KILLED FAMILY IN WANT

Could Not See Them Starve to Death He Tells Police

CHICAGO, Jan. 23. — Patrick Tierney, half-frozen after walking the streets all night, staggered into police headquarters early today and asked for lodging. He was arrested and charged with the brutal murder of his wife and three-year-old son. Tierney confessed, police said, that he had killed his family.

"I had only 80 cents and no job," he said. "I could not see the wife and baby starve. So I killed them."

Tierney said he walked the streets all day and night after the murder trying to beg 25 cents.

"I wanted the money to buy poison," he said. I wanted to die. No one would give me a quarter, so here I am."

The bodies of Tierney's wife and child were discovered by their landlord. Mrs. Tierney, before her marriage, was Marjorie Meehan, daughter of a San Francisco ship captain. She met Tierney at a military ball in 1918.

When sickness results from carelessness, nature is apt to say, "I told you so."

GLEN INN OPENS SATURDAY NIGHT

Brilliant Dinner Dance at Glendale's Newest Cafe

More than 200 people availed themselves of the opportunity of attending the opening dinner dance at Glen Inn Saturday night.

Promptly at 7:30 o'clock the dinner was started, continuing until 9. The large table was arranged with wings, each of which seated 25 people. The various parties were located at the wings, which arrangement brought the guests closer together and made it just like an "old-timeparty." Among those present were Dr. T. C. Young and party of 32; C. C. Cooper and party of 12, E. U. Emery and party of 12, W. R. Rattray and party of 12, C. E. Neale and party of six, Roy L. Kent and party of four, W. S. Bell and party of 12 from Eagle Rock, Capt. T. D. Watson and party; the heads of departments of the J. A. Newton Electric company constituted a party of 12; the Long Beach Rotary club came in a party of 20. In addition to these there were a number of smaller parties.

After dinner the guests adjourned to the dining room on the main floor and after inspecting it returned to the ballroom. The tables and chairs had been cleared for dancing, which continued until midnight. A 5-piece orchestra made up of the Yama Yama boys direct from the Orpheum circuit, furnished music for dancing. Through the evening vocal selections were given by the musicians, and the management says that it is just a "cample" of what will happen every Saturday evening. This was one of the "big eevnts" of the season.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER IS GREAT

Fanny Hurst Story Pictured Most Wonderful Manner

"Just Around the Corner," which opened a successful engagement at the T. D. & L. theater yesterday and which is being shown for the last times today, is a picture classic, depicting the sunken lives of thousands of women who toil for home and children and nothing else—the mothers who bring a vast army of human beings into the world each day, to see them grow to youth, to suffer, or, rebelling, revolting from the squalor of tenement houses, to seek another life Just Around the Corner.

It is a picture that everybody should se. It goes right to your heart. You laugh, you cry—it is a big production—big in plot, story, character, production and has a tremendous appeal.

The more patience a woman has with her children the less she has with their father.
